Richard Mille began his eponymous brand in 2001. Since then his timepiece creations have taken on legendary status for the way in which they revolutionized and redefined the art of traditional watchmaking. Within the physical confines of a typical watch, Richard Mille's timepieces make full use of three-dimensionally arching spaces and cross sections, both for the watchcase and the movement itself. Even the layout and finishing details of all the mechanical parts have been treated as essential visual and stylistic elements within the scope of Mille's holistic approach to watchmaking. Richard Mille: "Of course, a watch must be an excellent timekeeping device, with the highest chronometric results achievable. Nevertheless, I see no reason why a watch should not be fascinating and multi-layered in its visual expressivity, both inside and out, in the same way a great work of art comprises complex layers of comprehension for each particular viewer. Defining these aspects during the design process is not far removed from the world of miniaturist painting, where an entire world can open up within a very confined area of just a few square centimeters."

This assimilation of watchmaking with artistic endeavour is also reflected in the company's close connections with the arts. An integral part of the Richard Mille Group, the storied publishing house, Éditions Cercle d'Art worked closely with Pablo Picasso and George Braque and represents the living legacy of an extraordinary moment in Modern Art. This intimate connection supports the brand's artistic vision for a truly 21st century conception of watchmaking. Contributing to this are enriching exchanges via the brand's numerous partnerships, which include artists such as internationally acclaimed dancer and choreographer Benjamin Millepied and the Palais de Tokyo museum in Paris.

Ruinart: Official Champagne for all Frieze art fairs including Frieze Los Angeles, Maison Ruinart laid the first stone of the history of Champagne on September the 1st, 1729. Since then, it has never ceased to perfect the excellence of its wines.

Its oenological choice, determined by the predominance of Chardonnay in its cuvées, is the signature of its authentic and recognized expertise. The universe of Maison Ruinart is today defined by elegance, purity and light. Its wines derive their strength from three centuries of history. The balance between its roots and the audacity of its commitments is the key to its success, making it a House that is forever contemporary.

Maison Ruinart expresses its commitment to art by commissioning well-known artists, which it has done since 1896 when Alphonse Mucha was invited to create an artwork that would make an immense impact at the time. In 2020, “Air de L.A.”, a specific and interactive art commission to LA-based artist David Horvitz will be revealed and enjoyed for the very first time during Frieze LA in the Ruinart art bar.
